CITIZENSHIP, MORAL EDUCATION, AND CIVILIZATION BUILDING

(Any school teacher can enroll a class, a school, or school district)

- Without cost, join classrooms online across the country in a "symbolic dialogue" with the President's State Of The Union address in 2004 and/or 2005 and "social audits." Help youth engage in civil discourse about the future in an essential process of "Psycho-Social Moratoria" (Erik Erikson, i.e., a "timeout place to talk").
- In one class period present the State of the Union Address, engage students in foursome "Future Molding Game" discussions, and later collect their anonymous opinions online using the Fast Forum® technique. Anonymous responses of parents and other adults can also be included.
- Teachers can add class questions to expand citizenship and critical thinking skills and create reports from the anonymous responses of students (and their parents and other adults when available) for later reflection in both classroom and home.
